

Araucanas/Ameraucanas

Originally from Chile, in South America they are called the Easter egg fowl. They lay colored eggs: blue, green, pink, and olive drab. These birds vary in size and color, some may have whiskers and others muffs of feathers that cover their ears. Their eggs are reported to have more nutritional value than ordinary eggs.

Golden Comets

The Comet has been widely acclaimed in all areas of the world where brown eggs are preferred. The Comet pullet is easily one of the finest brown egg layers available today. They mature early and lay eggs of excellent size and quality. She is an extremely quiet bird, that seems to be able to withstand the colder, non-insulated, laying houses of the small flock owner, better than most breeds. When mature, the Comet pullet is golden red in color, but has some white showing through in her neck and back.

Barred Plymouth Rock

This is another old favorite and one that, in true breeding style, delivers big profits. This is one of the oldest and most selected strain of Barred Rocks in the U.S. The Barred Plymouth Rock has held its own because of its great merit as a profitable, practical fowl for every day in the year use.

Rhode Island Red

If you are striving for the "Peak" in egg production and still want a heavy bird with good market possibilities, these Reds are for you. A check of national egg laying contest records will reveal the superior egg laying qualities of this breed.

Buff Orpingtons

An old time favorite with poultry people for many years. These are a nice quiet breed. They are a beautiful buff color and will lay lots of nice brown eggs.

Black Australorp

Is an eye-catching bird. It is black with an intense beetle-green sheen on its feathers. Australorps are very good brown egg layers, in fact one hen still holds the worlds record by laying 364 eggs in 365 days under official Australian testing.

Jersey Giants

These are beautiful birds, and you will find them massive in appearance. They are noted for both good laying ability and good meat characteristics. They lay dark brown eggs, are very docile and easy to work with.

Silver Laced Wyandottes

These are truly magnificently colored birds. Their silvery white feathers, laced with black make them a most attractive bird in your barn yard. They are heavy producers of large brown eggs.

New Hampshire

For outstanding vigor, size, uniform growth, early maturity, rapid full feathering, heavy egg production and large egg size, This fine strain produces large brown eggs with extra good shell texture, and has a yellow skinned carcass free from dark pin-feathers.

Layers $2.50 each

Buckeyes

They're named after the "Buckeye State" of Ohio where this breed originated in 1896. Buckeyes have rich yellow skin, with mahogany feathering and black tail. They adjust to confinement well but prefer to range on grass. A good dual purpose producer of brown eggs well suited for small farm yard and back yard flocks.

Cuckoo Marans

Know best for their distinctive chocolate brown eggs. The Cuckoo Maran is a rare breed that adapts well to confinement. They resemble a Barred Plymouth Rock except their bars are not as perfect and their colors are not as distinct. Marans lay the darkest eggs of any breed and are a nice dual purpose bird.

Welsummers

A Dutch breed known for its cold hardy, calm temperament and the production of dark reddish brown eggs. Welsummers are single combed and have very different plumage from male to female making them an unique addition to your flock.

Broilers $1.90 each

Cornish Rock Cross

The large massive Cornish Cockerels are bred to large broiler type White Rock hens. The cross produces one of the finest quality broiler type chicks that can be found anywhere. They make market weight in 7 weeks. Many of our customers report 4 lb. broilers in 7 to 8 weeks. They give you the desired broad breast, big leg, big thigh, uniform conformation, rich yellow skin, extra fast feathering, real prime broilers. We cannot overemphasize the importance of proper nutrition for your successful results from our Cornish X Rock Cross chicks!

Freedom Rangers

This slow growing broiler is well-suited for more natural rearing methods, such as free range or organic systems.

Characteristics include yellow skin, Shanks and beaks along with mostly red feathering, including a small percentage of tri color birds. Expect 4 to 5 lb birds (live weight) in 9 to 11 weeks.
